Family Memories

Poem

“You Will Be Mine” by Jody Turner and Lyn Sheather read by Jody Turner

Growing up it was just you and I,
We fought, we laughed, we cried,
We did not always show the love,
That we both always had inside.
Together we shared our dreams and plans,
And some precious memories too,
All the memories we now share,
Were all because of you.

The moments had over all these years,
Are what keeps me connected to you,
The days spent fishing and sarcastic jeers,
If only you ever knew how much
I cherished my time with you.
The memories will always remain,
From our days on the farm,
to raising a kid or two,
It's more than I can explain.

As children I would forever shadow you,
I was never far behind,
Now when the sun shines I'll always know,
That you will be in mine...

Verse

"Now I'm Gone" by Jody Turner

Read by Daryl Nowland

Now I am gone
Don't learn to live without me
Just learn to hold onto my memory
And love me in a different way
I know the pain you feel is real, but mine is no more
Close your eyes and see me as I am
And I will be there, with my hand in yours
Giving you strength to go on.

I will be there, for every moment, every first, and every last
Although you will have me now only in your heart
When you sit alone in the quiet, think of me and you will know, I am there
And that I did not leave.

There is no leaving when such love remains
In the eyes of my children and the heart of theirs
I rest easy knowing the legacy I created
Will continue on without me.

Now I am gone
Look for my shadow, it will whisper in the moments.
My spirit will go on, even though my body could not.
Remember me, but remember to go on.....
Now I am gone
